2008 Saint Barth Cata Cup
Blowing in the Wind

What's New?

While Saint Barth maintains its innate character and charm, it's an island in perpetual motion with lots of news to report every season. Here's what's new this season:

New Representatives:

Along with its evolution from a town in Guadeloupe to an Overseas Collectivity (COM), Saint Barth also gained a new senator. The election was held on September 21, and the honor went to Michael Magras, the only candidate to run for the position. The fourth vice-president of the island's territorial council, Magras is a senator representing the UMP, the political party of French president Nicolas Sarkozy. A few months earlier, last June, Christian Lédée was named to represent Saint Barth on the National Economic, Social, and Environmental council, based at Palais d'Iena in Paris.

New Institutions:

Once again, with the creation of the COM, new local institutions were established. In addition to the Territorial Council and the Economic, Social and Cultural of Saint Barth, a new Economic Chamber—representing all sectors of local business—has been established. Its 12-member board, which stays in office for five years, was elected on November 8, with Alain Magras as president.

A New Church:

Created in 1994, the Evangelical Church of Saint Barth did not have its own building to call home. But that changed as of last September. With the help of a bank loan, the 100 members of the church financed a new house of prayer, located on The Point in Gustavia (on the far side of the harbor).

A New Priest:

His name is Eugène Kazé and he is just 34 years old. In October, he replaced Father Silvère Numa (who returned to Guadeloupe) as the priest for the Catholic diocese of Saint Barth. Eugène Kazé is a member of the Haitian community of Montforain fathers.

Restaurant news:

O'Corner is gone: In its place, L'Isola, a very good Italian restaurant open only for dinner. Also gone is La Gamelle. Vive the new Central Park, which took its place, offering a diverse menu at reasonable prices in a pleasant ambiance. Another pleasant spot is Mango, open for lunch at the Christopher Hotel, where one can take advantage of the hotel's magnificent swimming pool. Esprit Salines has a new formula and will be open for lunch with a simpler menu: salads, bagels with smoked salmon, cheeseburgers, and club sandwiches... the perfect spot for lunch after swimming at Saline beach. Opening soon: two restaurants at the Carl Gustaf, which reopens on December 15. First is a fine dining spot baptized "Victoria," which is open just for dinner.

tized "Victoria," which is open just for dinner. Plus the Carl Gustaf Lounge, open all day, from 11:30am on. Finally, a special mention for Le César, located at the Village Saint Jean, which welcomes late sleepers for breakfast until 12:30pm with hot bread and homemade jam.

Hotel news:

The Christopher, closed for a year-and-a-half, reopened as a three-star hotel in early November, with prices that can't be beat for the quality. Running the show is the well-known David Henderson—stay tuned for an update in the next edition. After six months of renovation, the Carl Gustaf will open with a new look on December 15. Surprise, surprise, Le Toiny also underwent refurbishment this year—read all about in on page . And finally there's the Normandie, which was taken over by Dennis Carlton, totally renovated, and open with very reasonable prices.

Special events:

Carole's Places are still the place to go for nightlife, with live music now on the program at the Yacht Club all season with bands coming in from New York: Definitely worth a listen. A more intimate spot, Le César at Village Saint Jean, will once again present a mixed bill of music-hall, live bands, and magicians... Check out our Time Out listings for details.

Post-Omar Situation.

We can relax. All is well. If the strong seas from the west caused by hurricane Omar crashed into the Port of Gustavia, the damage is all but repaired. The only visible trace is the missing walkway—washed away by the waves—from the main dock to La Route de Boucanier. It will be rebuilt during the next low season.

A PASSION FOR EXCELLENCE

Security Screening Of Passengers and Baggage At Airport

The Collectivity of Saint Barth, which manages the island's Gustav III airport, put a security screening system in place, for both passengers and their carry-on baggage, on November 1. "This security system is no different from what passengers are used to in other airports. It meets all security requirements as recommended by the ICAO (International Civil Aviation Organization)," explains Jacques Mangenot, territorial representative for civil aviation for the Northern Islands. A private security firm, Saint Barth Sécurité Privée, has been hired to assure the organization and daily operation of the security service, and has six trained agents who work in shifts seven days a week at all hours that the airport is open.

Classic Control

The security inspection comprises, for the majority of all passengers, a simple walk through the metal detector. The agents can also, if needed, use a hand-held wand to determine the exact location of metal items. They are also allowed to pat down passengers if they suspect dangerous materials that are non-metallic: this is performed by a male agent for male passengers, and a female agent for female passengers, as required by law. All carry-on bags now go through the X-ray machine.

At the time being, an average of 200 people have been controlled per day, since the system was put into place. The rhythm will be forced to accelerate once the high season begins... which is now! That is why passengers are requested to respect the time indicated for check-in by the local airlines, and not wait until the last minute (when the flight is called) to go through security.

90th Commemoration of WWI Armistice

Tribute To Two million American Soldiers Who Fought In The War

Yves Gréaux, first vice-president of the Collectivity of Saint Barth, took the place of president Bruno Magras—who was off island at the time—to preside over the November 11 commemoration of the 90th anniversary of the end of the First World War and the signing of the armistice. Three floral wreaths were placed at the War Memorial in Gustavia—the first by Philippe Enault, president of the veterans of foreign wars in Saint Barth, who was accompanied by David Grodberg, who paid tribute to his father Harry Grodberg, who fought in WWI. Laetitia Dufay placed the second floral arrangement, with the third wreath, representing the Collectivity, placed by Yves Gréaux, who spoke on behalf of the island and the veterans group in commemorating the two million soldiers who came from the United States to fight in WWI.

Gréaux also paid a special tribute to Harry Grodberg, the father of David Grodberg, an American resident of Saint Barth. A dental school graduate in 1917, Harry Grodberg was just 22 years old when he was called to the German front in November 1917. He spent a year at the hospital of Aix la Chapelle, where he worked to restore broken jaws.

Demobilized a few weeks after the end of the war, he returned to the United States and married in 1923, later having two children, a daughter, and David, who has organized the annual St Barth Dental Conference for the past 13 years.

Saint-Barth Celebrates Sweden

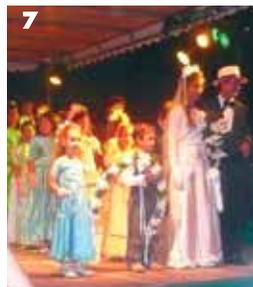

The event organizers feared the worst, but all's well that ends well. In spite of an Air France strike that delayed the arrival of many guests from Sweden, the first annual Swedish Week opened on schedule on Sunday, November 16, with the Pitea Day celebration that marks the twinning of Saint Barth with this Swedish city—with a population of 40,000 people—located 550 miles north of Stockholm and 60 miles from the Arctic Circle. This year's Pitea Day was special in that it also commemorated the 30th anniversary of these twin cities, and the 130th anniversary of the retrocession of Saint Barth to France by Sweden. A photo gallery of the week's events—which concluded with a concert by the outstanding June Quintet at the Anglican Church.

- 1- Fishing tournament and Vanguard regatta: nautical activities opened the Swedish week calendar.
- 2- A minute of silence after a floral wreath was placed in the Swedish cemetery in Public. The June Quintet played the Saint Barth hymn, Ouanalao, followed by the Swedish national hymn and the Marseillaise.
- 3- The June Quintet, accompanied by singer Maria Keohane, performed a selection of wonderful Scandinavian songs for the opening of the exhibit, The Evolution of Saint Barthélemy from the 18th to the 20th Century, held at gallery Porta in Gustavia. A goldmine of unpublished information, photographs, and illustrations curated and presented by Arlette Patrigeon and Léna Jonsson.
- 4- Winner of the Pitea photo contest entitled "Pitea Today," 19 year-old Evelina Lif, won a trip to Saint Barth. A dream come true for this young woman who works in a gas station. Her winning image is of the southern part of the port of Pitea and was taken in August 2006, a hot, sunny summer morning when the sea blends into the sky.
- 5- The official delegation of Pitea (from left to right) Evelina Lif, winner of a photo contest held in Pitea, Fäldt, Pitea council member, Helena Stenberg, first deputy mayor, and Helene Röckner, municipal services director for Pitea. This was their first visit to Saint Barth and admitted that they found a little touch of home in the small port of Gustavia.
- 6- Dancers from the Royal Ballet of Stockholm.
- 7- Parade of Traditional costumes of St Barth.

Astrid Ohlsen, director of production for Swedish television, presented the screenings in the Swedish Film & Documentary Festival, which took place in the meeting room at the Capitanerie during the Swedish Week.

Renovated Luxury At Hotel Le Toiny

One of the most exclusive hotels in Saint Barthélemy—the five-star “Relais & Châteaux” Hôtel Le Toiny (www.letoiny.com) offers just 15 luxurious Villa Suites painted in perky pastel colors on the outside—with private pools, outstanding ocean views, and a perfect attention to detail. Open since 1992, Hôtel Le Toiny was renovated this year, adding to the elegance and charm of the property. “The Villa Suites just went through a complete refurbishment and now offer a vibrant French Colonial style that is much more colorful and warm,” says the hotel’s Executive Sales Manager, Claire Hillau.

The fabulous four-poster mahogany beds—made in Martinique—still grace each Villa Suite, while the décor was re-imagined by Guy & Dagmar Lombard, the General Managers, with the help of local interior decorator Marielle Delaporte and Thierry Guedj, from St. Martin. The teak and mahogany furniture is complemented with four different fabric color schemes—taupe and red, turquoise and green, or mauve and beige, plus the classic blue “toile de jouy,” which has been a popular color at Hôtel Le Toiny since it first opened.

“We just built a new gym with ocean view, plasma screen, bathroom, and fully equipped with the latest in high-tech exercise equipments,” adds Claire. The gym is open from 7am – 11pm for the convenience of the guests at the hotel. There is now a barber shop, which is part of an extension to the Serenity Spa Cottage. “It is a barber shop only,” Claire notes, pointing out that there are “hairdressers on call, for in-room service or service at the Serenity Cottage, upon our guests’ preference.”

Also new is a free laundry service for guests as of January 1, 2009, at which time they will also begin growing their own vegetables in a new 2000 square foot organic greenhouse.

The hotel’s restaurant, Restaurant Le Gaïac, also has some news for the season. The Fish Market is now every Tuesday (rather than Wednesday) and is available for both lunch and dinner. “This year there is an even larger selection of fresh fish to be chosen by the clients and grilled before their eyes,” says Claire. Le Gaïac is also famous for its Sunday brunch, with a buffet that features a large choice of salads, tarts, fish, quiche, barbecue, desserts (don’t miss the chocolate mousse!), and of course the fabulous panoramic views of the sea.

Executive Chef Stéphane Mazière has created two new fixed-price menus for the season as well, and they are available every evening except Tuesday: Découverte des Antilles (Discover The Antilles, 100? excluding beverages) and Terre et Mer (Land and Sea, 130? excluding beverages). “The dining room has been refreshed with a new turquoise blue tone which reminds you of the sea beyond,” notes Claire.

From dining or enjoying Sunday brunch in the open, airy restaurant to relaxing by the pool, or checking in to one of the finely appointed Villa Suites, Hôtel Le Toiny defines the very kind of luxury that Saint Barth is known for!

Saint Barth Once Again Honored By Condé Nast Traveler Awards 2008

Hotels, resorts, airlines, cruise ships, islands, cities, car rental companies: this year the more than 32,000 globe-trotting subscribers of Condé Nast Traveler, the prestigious American travel magazine, vote for a list of the Top 100 Best In The World. The winners are divided by category and geographic zone. This year's distinguished winners were presented with their awards at a gala evening held on October 15 at the New York Public Library. Anne Dentel, president of the St. Barth Hotel Association, was there to receive the award given to Saint Barth, listed for the second year in a row as the third most popular tourist destination in the Caribbean/Atlantic zone, after Bermuda and Saint John. The list is the result of a poll run last April and May for the readers of the magazine.

Klara Glowczewska, editor-in-chief of Condé Nast Traveler, presenting the 2008 Awards on October 15 at the New York Public Library of New York.

Three hotels in Saint Barth were also honored, including The Hotel Saint Barth Isle de France, voted best hotel in the Caribbean/ Atlantic zone, with a score of 92.5% based on four criteria—rooms, service, restaurants, and location. Tied for second place were the Eden Rock and the Toiny, both with a score of 92.4. Also nominated was the Carl Gustaf, which came in sixth with a score of 82.3%. That gives Saint Barth the distinction of having four of the top ten hotels in the Caribbean/Atlantic zone.

The Hotel Saint Barth Isle de France was also on the Top 100 in the world list, in 94th place, while the top hotel in the world honor when to the Four Seasons Golden Triangle in Chiang Rai, Thailand. The Isle de France is also the only hotel in the Caribbean on the best of the best for 2008.

Lions Club International Peace Poster Contest Bertrand Gréaux, local winner

On Monday, November 10, sixth grade student Bertrand Gréaux took first place in the local portion of the Lions Club International Peace Poster Contest, whose theme for 2008-2009 is "Peace Begins With Me."

Thirty-two students participated in this year's contest, out of an original list of 60. Along with the first-place posters from Martinique, Guadeloupe, Guyana, and Saint Martin, Bertrand's poster will be sent to the district governor of the Lions Club, who will select one entry. If Bertrand's poster is the winner on the district level, it will be sent on the international head-

which is the most widely used version. We did not change a single word and it is published in its entirety,” Söderberg notes. The verses were however “unnumbered” and certain passages are highlighted to indicate their relevance to the images. “Bible Illuminated: The Book, New Testament” is available at amazon.com, amazon.fr, and in the US at such bookstores as Barnes & Nobles and Borders.

RSCG, then became an innovative publisher. “We asked ourselves why the Bible, the bestselling book of all time (editor’s note: Söderberg estimates that 500 million Bibles are sold each year worldwide) is rarely read and often hidden. Why is it always on the top shelf on the bookcase? We wondered what we could do to make it more accessible to everybody, to make it a subject of daily discussion. Why not make it in magazine format like “Vogue,” to bring the Bible out of the library and onto the coffee table, onto a table in a café, or in the dentist’s waiting room.” It took almost a year for the project to become a reality: the first version was in Swedish, with the Old Testament (450 pages) published at Easter in 2007, with the New Testament (260 pages) following in the fall of the same year. The English-language version of the New Testament, with 100,000 copies in the first printing, has just been published. The Old Testament is expected in time for Easter 2009. “We used the Good News translation by the American Bible Society,

A SNEAK PREVIEW IN GUSTAVIA

Twenty-five panels with photographs from the Old and New Testament versions, as published by Dag Söderberg’s company, Illuminated World, are on exhibit near the Capitainerie in Gustavia. This open-air exhibit (protected from the elements under the overhang of the building) will be there for a few more days and allows the curious to take a sneak peek at “Bible Illuminated: The Book.” Sällskapet, The Swedish Friends of Saint Barth Association—and its president Roger Richter—proposed the exhibit as part of the island’s first Swedish Week, November 16-23. A similar, yet larger exhibit—with 104 large-scale panels—was organized in Sweden when the book was launched in the fall of 2007. Additional exhibits are planned shortly in the United States: New York, as well as Los Angeles.

2008 Saint Barth Cata Cup

The duo Boulogne/Krevyn is victorious

Organized by the Saint Barth Multi-Hulls Association along with the Nautical Center of Saint Barth, the 2008 edition of the Saint Barth Cata Cup took place on the weekend of November 21-23 on the bay of St Jean. This two-handed race for sport catamarans was launched in 1992 by several sailing fans. It took place for three consecutive years, 1992-1994, before it was interrupted in 1995 by the passage of hurricane Luis.

Saint Barth Multi-Hulls has picked up the flame 14 years later. Their goal is to make this regatta—which should take place every year in November—the absolute “must” event in the West Indies for sport catamarans Antilles en catamarans de sport. The winner of the 2008 edition was the duo Boulogne/Krevyn.

SAINT BARTH BY NIGHT: THE YACHT CLUB

Looking for a little nightlife in Gustavia? One of the hippest joints in town is the Yacht Club, one of "Carole's Places" on the far side of the harbor, next to La Marine. In celebration of its fifth anniversary, there's quite a bit new about the Yacht Club this season, starting with a total redo of the interiors giving the space a very different look. Everything is not white as it was in the past: it is now done in black, with yellow and red accents in the candles and pillows. "We wanted to make it more like a lounge," says Philippe Olivier Bondon, who was been with the club since its inception and a business partner with owner Carole Gruson (who also owns La Marine and Ti St Barth). Also new at the Yacht Club is live music from 10pm-12:30am, Tuesday through Saturday nights. "We are bringing in groups from New York," notes Bondon. The first group to launch the "live" concept was Superhero, a trio playing classic rock on the small stage area right on the dance floor (where there are poles for special occasions featuring pole dancers). This part of the club sits alongside the Gus-tavia harbor, and has comfortable black sofas for lounging enjoying bottle service or specialty cocktails, such as a daiquiris, royal mojito (made with champagne) or margarita made at the nearby bar and attractively served with fruit slices or curlicues. "The sofas create a little VIP area," says Bondon, "and offer the feeling of being slightly above the dance floor."

After the live music finishes, DJs take over to create a special ambiance for the after-hours party with an eclectic mix of musical styles (see Time Out for list of DJs). There is still an informal dress code at the Yacht Club, where men cannot wear shorts and the look is casual chic. But the best news of all at the Yacht Club is that all smoking is now outside!

Le Beaujolais Nouveau Has Arrived!

Thanks to the time zone difference, the residents of Saint Barth were among the first people in France to taste this year's vintage of Beaujolais Nouveau on Wednesday, November 19, at 7pm (when it already the third Thursday of the month in France, when the wine is traditionally unveiled). The arrival of the wine is the perfect time to celebrate the spirit of partying and conviviality, and there were various wine tastings to see how the cuvee 2008 compares.

A warm ambiance at Grands Vins de France.

What's Cooking At Ti St Barth

Early morning, things are pretty quiet at Ti St Barth, Carole Gruson's "place" in Point Milou. Yet things are happening in the kitchen, where chef Pascal Giglio and his staff start their prep for the day at 9am. This hip eatery has been open for 14 years, and Giglio—who is originally from Toulon, France—has been chef ever since day one, and since last year has been a business partner with Gruson. And in spite of the fact that Ti St Barth has a reputation for a party place, where people dance on the tables after dinner, Giglio takes his cooking rather seriously. "The cuisine is designed to please the clients," he says. "I want to make what the clients ask for. In the beginning Carole wanted to do a Creole menu but instead we turned to the idea of barbeque. Good simple food. We use real wood charcoal from Guadeloupe, and that makes a difference." One of the BBQ specialties Giglio is known for is the "cote de boeuf made with sel de guerande," considered by many as the best steak on the island. "This helped build our reputation," says the chef, who also serves tuna tataki, and a filet of beef marinated in sweet soy sauce then "grilled just a minute on the grill and served very rare." When it comes to fish, Giglio uses only local fish—such as mahi-mahi and tuna—caught in the waters of Saint Barth. Appetizers include tuna tartar served with guacamole and a light lemon soy sauce. The pastry chef adds pizzazz to the close of a meal with a dessert called "C'est l'amerique (That's America) which combines a chocolate brownie with chocolate-caramel ice cream and caramel sauce.

"The desserts all have funny names," adds Giglio, pointing out another favorite: sweet Thai message, which is fruit salad with citronelle and cardamom.

When it comes to flavors, Giglio likes things to be "unusual, but subtle. I like what is simple," he says. The main ingredient is what's important and I don't like to hide it under sauce unless requested. Fish for example, a filet of grouper, I don't want to drown it with spices, I like the flavor of the fish to come through." Other than local fish, many products Giglio uses come from the United States, such as beef, or veal from France. "Like in all restaurants in Saint Barth, almost everything has to be imported, but you can't change the prices on the menu to reflect the prices of imported food."

Giglio works with a staff of five or six: sous-chef, pastry chef, line cooks, and a dishwasher. They work from 9am until noon, getting everything ready, then return at 5pm for the evening service. Fashion shows, theme parties, dancing on the tables—all part of the scene at Ti St Barth on Monday through Saturday nights (the "Ti" is closed on Sundays), with dinner served from 7:30-11pm. "People often stay to dance after dinner. They don't have to leave and go to a nightclub if they don't want to. They can dance right on the tables where they had dinner," says Giglio. "The real success for me is our clients, they helped make us a success. It's thanks to them we are still here. We try to give them what we want—good quality food and service—plus the party atmosphere. But we don't compromise on the quality."

Stuart Weitzman: Shoes To Make Women Happy

Carole Pernelle has exciting news: her shoe store on the upper level of the Carré D'or in Gustavia is now devoted exclusively to Stuart Weitzman, the celebrated designer who knows who to create shoes that make a woman feel beautiful—and happy. For over 30 years, Weitzman—a native New Yorker—has been making over 600 styles per year at his factories in Spain.

How did she discover Stuart Weitzman shoes? “An Italian client suggested a partnership,” says Pernelle, who has lived in the West Indies her entire life, growing up in Guadeloupe, and moving to Saint Barth 15 years ago.

Carole and Vanessa at the new Stuart Weitzman shoe store.

“I went to New York and saw the collection and loved it,” she notes. “I was tired of having a lot of different brands but no exclusivity.” That has all changed now that she is the exclusive representative for Stuart Weitzman in Saint Barth.

“I have selections from the spring and summer collections, which are perfect for Saint Barth,” Pernelle adds. Some of the shoes were created especially for the Saint Barth store and not sold elsewhere. “I was able to gray, for a minimalist ambiance to show off the shoes.

Weitzman’s shoes are popular with TV and movie stars: his stiletto pumps and clutch bags were seen at the 60th annual Emmy Awards, actress Angelina Jolie owns a few pairs, and Kim Cattrall wears them in the film of Sex & The City. In addition, Warner Bros. has commissioned Weitzman as one of the leading designers to recreate Dorothy’s famous ruby slippers to celebrate the 70th anniversary of the 1939 film, The Wizard of Oz—complete with Swarovski crystals (the collection will be auctioned off to benefit the Elizabeth Glaser Pediatric AIDS Foundation).

choose the style, the color, and the heel I wanted,” in models that range from sandals to heels, all open and perfect for the tropics where bare toes are a must.

Not only the shoes are new: Pernelle also redecorated her boutique, replacing the former brown and turquoise color scheme with a trendy new look: all white and is the second one in France to feature Weitzman’s shoes: he opened his first official boutique in Paris on Rue Saint Honoré in September. The first collection for Saint Barth (prices starting around $200) is available in Carole Pernelle’s boutique—perhaps you’ll find the perfect pumps for the holidays!

Food Festival: Simple and Chic

Close your eyes and taste...do you hear the cicadas? Yes? Not surprising since the guest chef at Bar'tô, at the Guanahani Hotel and Spa, is Sylvain Humbert, from the restaurant, La Palmeraie at the Chateau de Valmer, a charming three-star hotel in a Provencal country house located in the midst of vineyards just steps from the beach in Saint Tropez on the Mediterranean Sea. Humbert will be on the island through December 21, invited to participate in the Guanahani's annual Food Festival by his friend Philippe Masegla, restaurant director for the hotel in Grand Cul de Sac. For the Food Festival, Sylvain Humbert and Philippe Masegla created a menu based on Mediterranean flavors, inspired by specialties served during the summer at La Palmeraie. Perhaps the Carnaroli risotto with aged Parmesan and mini octopus in sauce will tempt you? Then by the Saint-

Pierre fish with thyme, cooked 'a la plancha,' with fennel? And to finish—the autumn pear poached in spiced syrup with soft caramel with 'fleur de sel.' These are but a few samples of the new menu described as "simple and chic, where the choice of products makes all the difference," state the two buddies in the kitchen. Among these products, some come directly from the south of France, such as sardines, purple artichokes, or truffles from the upper Var region, and others that lend themselves to harmonious marriages, such as Borlotti beans from Paimpol and turbot, or lobster and rataouille. Bon appétit!

Puzzle

There's no math involved. The grid has numbers, but nothing has to add up to anything else. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic. It's fun. It's challenging. It's addictive! "Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1 through 9." That's all there is to it.
