35 MAGNIFICENT SAILBOATS HEAD TO BUCKET STARTING LINE

Regatta As Well As Informal Boat Show, the 2013 Saint Barth Bucket Takes Place March 28 -31

One of the most prestigious regattas, the 2013 Saint Barth Bucket takes place March 28-31, the last weekend of the month. The Port of Gus-tavia awaits the arrival of an exceptional fleet of sailboats, most of which measure over 100' in length. This year the fleet includes five outstanding J-Class yachts, originals and replicas: Hanuman, Lionheart, Rainbow, Ranger, and Veshelda, while the largest competitor in the race is the majestic Maltese Falcon at 289ft. Among the sponsoring yacht builders—Perini Navi, Holland Jachtbow, Royal Huisman, Vitters, and Alloy Yachts—Perini Navi has the largest number of yachts in the Bucket this year: Andromeda La Dea, Maltese Falcon, P2, Panthalassa, Parsifal III, Salute, Silencio, and Zenji. British naval architect Ed Dubois will also be well represented, with six boats: Lady B, Moonbird, Salperton IV, Sarafin, and Zefira, as the Saint Barth Bucket is as much a boat show, where these great yachts are on parade with an eye to buying and selling, as well as racing. “The Bucket is my boat show,” confirms Dubois. “I bring potential clients here—some are repeat clients who have become friends—and the Bucket gives us a stage on which to act our play.”

A feeder race organized by the Yacht Club Costa Smeralda, precedes The Bucket this year, from Virgin Gorda to St. Barth on March 25, open to mono-hulls over 80' and multi-hulls over 60'. The awards ceremony in St Barth on March 26 includes the Virgin Gorda–St. Barth Loro Piana Superyacht Trophy. The fleet for this race includes Athos, Cape Arrow, Indio, Wild Horses, and Zefira.

Each year, The Bucket makes an important donation to a worthwhile project or association in Saint Barth. This year, a check for 20,000 euros will be presented to the Saint Barth Yacht Club. This donation will be used to purchase two RS Vision boats. Additional information on the 2013 Bucket online at www.bucketregattas.com

FROM CAPTAIN TIM LAUGHRIDGE, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, BUCKET REGATTAS

"I'm very excited to get back to my favorite Island in the world, St Barth! My week will start with that special flight into St Barth, made even more special overlooking the spectacular and eclectic mix of participating sailing super yachts – it's magic!

I'm fortunate to be helming Parsifal III, one of the large Perini yachts. The pressure to exceed in all aspects will certainly be felt in our Grandes Dames class. Beyond the racing, keeping up with the hospitality and parties on board is another competition in itself.

I hope everyone participates in the Saturday Night Bucket Bash. We'll share some libations, swap stories, and dance the night away. In the spirit of the island's maritime history and our seafaring relationship, we've declared the theme of "Pirates and Wenches."

Most importantly, my overall goal is to ensure that the St Barth Bucket continues for many more years into the future. As we like to say: Sail Safe, Win the Party!"

CLOSE TO 60 BOATS LINED UP FOR LES VOILES DE SAINT BARTH

A top nautical event, Les Voiles de Saint Barth takes place April 8-13, 2013. Close to 60 boats are heading toward the starting line.

Inaugurated in 2010, Les Voiles de Saint Barth has just three editions under its belt but has already made a name for itself in the nautical world, attracting owners and sailors from around the globe. The challenge of the fourth edition, which takes place April 8-13: "To do at least as well as in past years," notes Luc Poupon, race director and co-organizer with François Tolède and Annalisa Gee. "One way is to offer new things on the water as well as on land," Poupon adds. "This year there are many boats returning. To keep them interested we have to offer new race courses." With its interesting cutout perimeter, the configuration of Saint Barth is "a real asset for us," Poupon says. "The coastal landscapes are very different from each other, and the presence of 15 small islands allows us to organize different courses with lots of changes in direction, which call for numerous maneuvers for the crew," explains the race director. About 28 courses, from 14 to 40 miles, have already been created, with the same starting line in the harbor and a finish line near the Petits Saints, off the coast of the point of Gustavia. The final choice of courses depends on weather conditions the day before each race. And the courses vary according to the size of the boats. At press time, 58 boats were already pre-registered for the fourth edition of Les Voiles, and divided into six classes: Maxi-Racing/Maxi-Racing Cruising, IRC 52, Spinnaker, Non Spinnaker, Racing Multi-hull and Classic. Registration is still open, with a form to be filled out on the website for Les Voiles de Saint Barth: <http://www.lesvoilesdesaint-barth.com/site/pre-inscription/>. "Right up to the last minute," indicates Poupon.

On the shore, event organizers want to keep as many events as possible open to the public. This includes concerts every evening during the week, and closing-night fireworks. They also want to offer activities for kids, "to attract them to sailing," explains Poupon. And to host all of the participants, between four and thirty people per boat, in the best possible conditions. And they have less than a month to finalize all the last-minute details.

JIM SWARTZ, "GODFATHER" OF THE FOURTH EDITION

Following Patrick Demarchelier, Jimmy Buffett, and Peter Harrison, American Jim Swartz will serve as the "godfather" of the fourth edition of Voiles de Saint Barth, April 8-13. Swartz will also be out on the waves, at the helm of Vesper, an IRC 52 with which he won his class in the 2011 Voiles. A sailor with an impressive list of wins, this IRC champion is "the best advocate of this event for the skippers and owners of these sporty 52' sailboats," considers one of the event organizers. A veteran of the first three editions of Les Voiles, Swartz is back this year with an all-star crew of 16 sailors, including some America's Cup and match racing names: Gavin Brady, Jamie Gale, James Baxter, and Ben Beer. And he has only good things to say about the quality of racing in Saint Barth. "The key to the success of Les Voiles is the good balance of the different classes, and the strong competition within each class," notes Swartz. "Add the courses, each different and well adapted to each class, plus a very professional race committee, and you have a successful event," he says.

GERY LANGLAIS THE SPIRIT OF ST BARTH

By Ellen Lampert-Gréaux

His pastels capture the spirit of Saint Barth. In fact many aspects of the island are evoked in paintings by Géry Langlais, who is back for his annual exhibit at Les Artisans in Gustavia. He also shows his work in Brittany and Paris each year, but his show in Saint Barth reflects his love for the island.

the morning and at night." His new paintings of Saint Barth include nighttime and twilight scenes; times of day that Langlais finds magical. "There is a special feeling at that time of day," he avers. He also paints the island's traditional architecture and such icons as Le Select.

"The light and colors of the sea are similar in Brittany and Saint Barth, but of the water is colder there," he says with a big smile. "The light in Bali is so sharp, almost white at noon, yet very soft in

"When I see something, I paint what I see, and try to do it right away, to capture the feeling, especially at night when it's harder to take photos," the artist adds. "I would like to do some larger paintings in acrylic or even oils. Pastels are smaller due to the size of paper available." Acrylics would add a brighter color palette than seen in Langlais' softer yet inviting pastels, and allow the kind of minutia possible with a small brush.

ist fauves such as Pierre Bonnard, Langlais has developed a style that suits Saint Barth well. And his paintings show that he has really taken the island to heart, as if doing his personal best to preserve its charms.

SPRING CONCERTS BY LA CHORALE DE BONS CHŒURS

What luck to have a cool choir, so hot their concerts are sold out, with music floating to the rafters in the Anglican Church in Gustavia. After their two sold-out shows last November, the island's Chorale de Bons Chœurs, led by Shirley Dern, will present its spring concerts on Friday, March 22, and Saturday, March 23. The program contains a mix of old and new: some of the choir's popular standards, plus some new material from Jacques Brel (they say the accordion on this one will make you think you're at Les Deux Magots in Paris!) to Adele.

While the first half of the program is classical, from Mozart to Vivaldi, the second half covers pop, gospel, and rock, with a full rock band behind the choir (including Jean-Paul from The Rocking Mangoes on drums) and music by Sting, Pink Floyd, and Eddie Mercury. "We always sell out, so come early, and support this island institution," says choir member Lloyd Younger of Canada! "We promise to rock that little old church this week."

CAR REGISTRATION AND CORPORATE TAX DUE BY END OF MARCH

Anyone who owns a vehicle (automobile, truck, motorcycle, etc...) has until Thursday, March 28 to pay for their annual registration sticker or "vignette," since the administrative offices on the island are closed for Good Friday. An 80% penalty is applied to those who pay after the deadline. There are three spots to pay: near the dormitory in Lorient, close to the cemetery (open from 8am-2pm); the traffic service office above the territorial police station in Gustavia; and at the Hotel de la Collectivité (both open from 8am-12pm). Payment is via local check or cash, upon presentation of the vehicle registration card or insurance certificate.

Also due by March 28 is the annual 300 euro corporate tax (CFAE), which must be paid by those with a real estate SCI on the island. This can be paid at the Treasury office in Gustavia (open Monday, Tuesday, Thursday from 8am-12:30pm, and Wednesday, from 8am-12pm), or by placing the required form with payment in the mailbox at the Treasury until March 31. The form can be found on the Collectivity's website (www.comstbarth.fr) or picked up at the Treasury office. Once again, late payments will be charged an 80% penalty.

TWENTY-EIGHT TRASH CANS INSTALLED AROUND THE PORT

Twenty-eight new wooden trashcans have been installed by the Collectivity around the Port of Gustavia, in locations stretching from the terrain de boules as far as town hall, all the way around the harbor. This initiative was launched by the environmental commission of the territorial council in response to a demand from various merchants and patrons of the port, who wondered how it could be possible to keep Gustavia clean without the proper place to throw away trash. Two trashcans were also placed in Corossol. Gustavia's recently renovated Rue du Général de Gaulle, was until now the only one to have such trashcans.

HUMPBACK WHALE SEASON

It's that time of the year when humpback whales can be observed in the waters around Saint Barth, with several sightings per day this month, primarily near Toiny, Grand Fond, and Cul de Sac. Often accompanied by their young, the whales come near the shore to find food and rest, before they head back toward northern waters. These marine mammals are very sensitive, especially when with their babies, and should not be bothered should you have the chance to get close to them. Be sure to respect a distance of 150 meters, slow down considerably, and do not block their path. And limit your observation to 15 minutes, as they often consider such observation as harassment or even danger, as it can interfere with the nursing of calves. Saint Barth belongs to AGOA, a sanctuary for the protection of marine mammals, and an important international effort you can be part of. If you spot whales, please call 06 90

31 70 73 and report how many you see and where they are. The data collected on various islands helps estimate the global whale population and determine their migratory routes.
