Rock Around The Rock IN AUGUST

MRI Scanner Could Be Operational In September

Delivered on April 26, a new MRI scanner has been installed in the basement medical imagery center in the EHPAD in Gustavia. To be put into use, the scanner, which was purchased through donations to FEMUR, must undergo a battery of tests, and get approval from the Nuclear Safety Authority (ASN) which controls radioprotection (the scanner emits radioactivity). “The dossier was submitted last month. The ASN has six months in which to respond, and could give its approval as early as September,” explains radiologist Jean-François Bartoli. Once this approval is awarded, Saint Barth will be able to benefit from this ultra-modern medical equipment, which is more efficient and rapid than x-rays, and can help the doctors on the island—from generalists to the emergency room staff at the De Bruyn Hospital—make their diagnoses.

A scanner of this type is especially useful in the case of a cerebral vascular accident, or stroke. Coupled with a telemedicine network that links Saint Barth to the main hospital in Guadeloupe, the scanner allows for such diagnosis. In other words, the scanner serves as a safety net, which is worth its weight in gold on an island. “Having a scanner in Saint-Barthélémy is a choice based on the political agenda of president Bruno Magras,” indicates Bartoli. The goal is to offer visitors on the island the best security possible, including medical services, since many American guests, for example are covered by medical insurance policies that will not pay for certain services if the person travels to a destination without such a scanner.

Placed in the basement of the EHPAD (new old age home in Gustavia) the scanner will be under the control of a health cooperation group (GCS), composed on Nicole Gréaux, who represents the Collectivity, Hervé Magott, director of the De Bruyn Hospital, and Jean-François Bartoli, representing the medical imagery center.

A WELL-CONNECTED ISLAND SCANNER

In addition to the MRI scanner in the medical imagery center at the EHPAD, there are also machines for x-rays, mammograms, and ultrasound. Three radiologists work at the center, but if they are alternatively in Saint Barth or Saint Martin, the new scanner can be “operated remotely,” according to Jean-François Bartoli, as “the scanner is part of a special digital network. It has a state-of-the-art server, which allows doctors to visualize and control the scanner remotely, via their computers, laptops, or tablets, from wherever they are located,” Bartoli adds. The scanner will also be connected to a telemedicine network put into place by the Regional Health Center (ARS). This network links De Bruyn Hospital and the offices of Dr. Bartoli in Saint Martin with the CHU in Pointe-à-Pitre (main hospital in Guadeloupe), for remote access to additional expertise and exchanges via videoconferencing. Caméras will be added to complete the link to the new MRI scanner. In addition, “a third network will be put into place,” reveals Bartoli. Which means that patients in Saint Barth will be less isolated. On the contrary, “Saint Barth will be one of the most well-connected places in France in terms of such medical service,” notes Bartoli.

CHANGES TO URBANISM CODE

Modifications to the urbanism code include a new building permit that allows for the division of land other than a development or co-ownership. In addition, extensions limited to 20 sq meters no longer require a permit, but just a simple declaration of the work to be done.

The territorial council voted on a series of refinements to the local urbanism code at their last meeting, with the suggestions previously discussed by the urbanism commission. Absent from the commission meeting, opposition member Maxime Desouches (Saint-Barth en Mouvement) tried to reexamine the propositions during the council meeting, and was not pleased when the majority of the members refused to reopen the debate on these decisions, and noted after the meeting that he plans to revisit the amendments.

In addition, Benoit Chauvin and Bettina Cointre, who represent the list Tous Pour Saint-Barth, also had a few ideas of their own, especially the rules concerning the surface of a construction or gross floor area (SHON) and the surface outside of this area (SHOB). Chauvin and Cointre had proposed their ideas during the commission meeting but did not succeed in convincing the majority list, Saint-Barth d'Abord. At the council meeting, Cointre once again brought up the question: should we not modify the definition of the SHON in the urbanism code? Her thought is to take into account terraces, since almost all buildings on the island include them, in order to limit the size of buildings, which are getting bigger and bigger, and their impact on the landscape. These propositions "should not be dismissed out of hand," agreed Bruno Magras. They will be examined at a later date.

The changes adopted by votes of the majority members of the council consist primarily of refinements, clarifications, or precisions to the urbanism code. For example, the construction of a garage is now considered SHOB, and must be counted in the gross floor area, so gone are the days of 2000 sq ft garages for two cars, unless they are counted in the SHON. As for parking, regulations are now part of the urbanism code, since the prior regulations were cancelled along with the zoning map last fall. In fact some of the modifications made to the code are with an eye toward the adoption of a new zoning map, currently on the drawing board.

These modifications include better definition of the green zones that are to be protected, for example. As for the zoning map, article 25 notes that a revision to the map can relate to just one area of the island if a certain issue concerns just that neighborhood. The recent modifications also comprise the easing up on a few clauses, such as article 3, which has been amended to allow reconstructions to be of the same surface area but not identical to the original structure. Also, extensions of less than 20 sq meters SHON no longer require a permit, but just a declaration of the intended project, which no longer requires an architect, but allows owners to present their own plans. Other innovations include division of a tract of land in a way that is less cumbersome than a development or co-ownership, in order to allow several people to jointly purchase one piece of land. This grouping of buyers is intended to help combat rising land prices, but at the risk that this ease of purchase will accelerate the demand, and as a result raise prices even more.

Michel and his staff are happy to welcome you to their pool-side restaurant for lunch & dinner.

Seven Chefs And A Galaxy Of Stars

To make sure that Saint Barth is known for its gourmet dining, the Tourism Committee (CTTSB), the restaurant association of Saint Barthélemy, and the hotel and villa association, have organized the Taste Of Saint Barth, a culinary festival October 30–November 3. This event follows a successful pilot edition held at the beginning of the tourist season last year.

The idea is to invite renowned guest chefs, who work in the kitchens of the participating restaurants to create a gala menu for each evening of the festival. While this year’s chefs have been invited, all of their names have not yet been revealed, as they are highly solicited. One guest that is confirmed, however, is Japanese chef Matsuo Hideaki, who reigns in the kitchen at his Osaka restaurant, Kashiwaya (3 Michelin stars).

Also confirmed is the 2-starred Michelin chef, Jérôme Nutile, crowned “meilleur ouvrier” (best craftsman) of France in 2011. To appeal to the Brazilian clientele, the CTTSB has invited Thomas Troisgros, who is usually behind the stove at Olympe, in Rio, working alongside his father Claude. The Taste of Saint Barth will also mark the return of Jean-Jacques Noguier, whose restaurant, La Ferme de l’Hospital in Switzerland, has one Michelin star, as well as Amandine Chaignot, winner of Jean-Georges Vongerichten, executive chef for numerous restaurants including those at the Eden Rock, has been selected as the official patron of the 2014 Taste of Saint Barth, October 30-November 3.

the Bocuse Bronze Medal in 2012, chef at the Hôtel Raphael in Paris, and Swedish chef Daniel Berlin. All three were present for the pilot edition last year.

French chef Jean-Georges Vongerichten—whose restaurant Jean-Georges in New York is crowned with three Michelin stars—was chosen as the official patron of the event. Which is perfectly logical as he is well known to American guests and he has been the executive chef in the kitchens at the Eden Rock in Saint Barth for the past few years.

In addition to the gala dinners and other activities, the organizers are planning a bartending master class, run by Stéphane Ginouvès for those who like making cocktails. The bartender at Fouquet’s in Paris, Ginouvès has also been named “meilleur ouvrier” of France, among other honors.

Taiwana Gets A Fifth Star

Taiwana, the luxury hotel on the beach in Flamands, is now among the island's five-star accommodations. In a meeting on July 17, the island's executive council accepted the recommendation made by the territorial tourism commission to adopt this classification, which had first been suggested by the Apave, a French company that evaluates hotels. With this decision Taiwana now joins the Isle-de-France, Le Toiny, the Christopher, Eden Rock, Guanahani, and Le Sereno as the island's galaxy of five-star hotels. The Carl Gustaf, which has since closed its doors, was also a five-star establishment. The final step in the process of hotel ratings in Saint Barth is for Atout France, the official agency for the promotion of tourism in France, to register the decision made by the Collectivity and indicate the new five-star rating on its website.

tarist and the rock/blues style that allows his lovely, raspy voice to soar. Also in a blues vein is Marcus Levy, trained primarily with the Lost Wandering Blues and Jazz Band, a group of street musicians from New York. This songwriter, composer, and singer has had a few of his songs played on Scandinavian radio stations.

The roster comprises Chris Schoorman, singer/guitarist, who arrived in Saint Barth in 2013, has a style influenced by Pearl Jam, and performs as part of a duo in villas or on yachts, and the pop rock sound of Mr President (Stéphane Cano, Jessica Carpe and Hillroy).

Guest DJ Tristan Casara is among the hottest at the moment, with surprising remixes for keytar. Also hot is the electro deep and house music of Léo Lanvin, official DJ for the festival in Cannes, and whose lively morning show wakes up the audience each weekend on NRJ. DJ Jairo is a quite the “showman,” while DJ Blaze mixes hip hop, house progressive, dance, soca, and a Latin sound. Additional DJs include DJ Outkast (Saint Martin), Venus Experience (Lulu Bazterrica & German Vecino); DJ Moody Mike (Saint Martin), Claudius Raphael (New York), The Power Trio comprised of Gianfranco Segatto, Lee Hardesty et Lee Richardson, DJ Vince (the only local DJ from Saint Barth!).

Thirteen evenings of concerts are on the horizon for rock aficionados, as 2014 St Barth Summer Sessions rock from August 4-16. A musical highpoint of the summer, with at least 20 concerts including a special event at La Plage (Tom Beach Hotel) every night, and additional concerts at the Isle de France, Maya's, Bonito, l'Esprit de Jean-Claude, Eddy's, Le Toiny Hotel, The Christopher Hotel, and Le Carré.

Guest artists include Live Footage, a duo direct Brooklyn—the electric cello of Topu Lyo and the keyboards and drums that Mike Thies plays simultaneously—with an electro sound that borders on psychedelic; the Matt O'Ree Band with its blues-rock sound; Sophia Urista is a powerhouse singer and entertainer whose voice quality recalls that of Betty Mabry Davis or perhaps Macy Gray; the ever-popular Adam Lasher, is back on the festival stage to thrill the crowd with his soft-rock melodies. DJs include the resident DJ at La Plage Yo One, with his fabulous

Axel Merrell, known on the island as well as a performer at the Coachella festival of rock, electro, and hip hop in California and on the runways for major fashion names where she ensures a musical ambience; Vikkinova, known by those who frequent La Plage; and Kris Muniz, also seen at the turntables at Tom Beach and who will be playing alongside such renowned DJs as Markus Schultz, Marco Bailey and M.A.N.D.Y.

The 2014 St Barth Family Festival gets underway August 5 -17, after a prelude with several DJs on August 1, 2 and 3 at First, the Yacht Club, and Do Brazil. The official kickoff on August 5, at The First, features a series of live bands from 8:30pm to 1am, when DJs liven the dance floor until 4am.

Through August 17, various musicians, bands, and DJs will heat things up, by day and by night, in clubs and at pool parties. The roster once again includes Manu Lanvin, who was a bit hit last year, with his great talent as a gui-

SINGING CONTEST AUGUST 16

Once again, organization of the Fete Of Gustavia on August 16 & 17 falls to the non-profit group, The Youngz. Over the two days, they have a variety of activities planned, from games and tournaments to dancing on the dock, and new this year, a singing contest: The Voice Of The Caribbean, with a top prize of 1000 euros. This event is open to soloists as well as duets, with a fee of 10 euros per person to compete. Registration is open through August 9, by telephone at 06 90 76 04 17 or via email: theyoungzass@gmail.com.

PRE-SELECTION OF MISS ST BARTH CANDIDATES ON AUGUST 17

As part of the many activities planned for the Fete Of Gustavia, taking place on August 16 & 17 on the main dock in town, there will be a pre-selection of candidates for the island's next Miss Saint Barth election, which will take place in 2015. With a new organizing team in place for only a few months, the election of the next Miss Saint Barth was pushed back a year. At their recent meeting, the team made their decision based on a desire to improve the overall quality of the event: "We want the next Miss Saint Barth to be part of the Miss Prestige Nationale and Miss World competitions on one hand, and have the future Miss represent the younger generation of the island as part of the French Jeune Chambre Economique (young economic chamber) on the other," says Maryse Berry-Chinon, president of the Miss Saint Barth association. "We also want this to be more than just a beauty contest. We would like to help the girls prepare for a professional career by emphasizing other qualities as well," she adds. As a result, the current Miss Saint Barth, Alizée Delemazure, reigns for one more year. Sunday evening's events include a pre-selection of candidates for Miss Saint Barth 2015, and a closing concert by Njie, a singer from Guadeloupe.
